HIGHLIGHT DESTINATION OF THE MONTH

Jogighopa Caves: Assam's Hidden Gem

Tucked away in the Bongaigaon district of Assam, the Jogighopa rock-cut caves lie on the northern bank of the Brahmaputra River, about 212 km from Guwahati. These ancient caves date back to the Salasthambha period (655–900 AD) and are the only known examples of rock-cut architecture in Assam. Carved into grey sandstone, the five caves reflect the region's link to wider Indian architectural traditions.

Architectural Features:

- Size: Largest cave – approx. 2.6m wide, 1.8m deep, 1.9m high
- Design: Slightly concave ceilings and small verandahs
- Drainage: Rain ledge above entrance prevents water entry
- Access: Some caves have rock-cut steps, others are simpler

Purpose, Legacy & Preservation:

- Used as meditation chambers by monks, these caves offered a serene space for spiritual practice. Named "Jogighopa" or "cave of mendicants," they are now preserved by the Archaeological Survey of India for their cultural and architectural value.

How to Reach:

- By Road: Well-connected by NH 27, approx. 212 km from Guwahati.
- By Rail: Nearest station is Jogighopa.
- By Air: Closest airport is LGBI Airport, Guwahati.
